

Bird watching excursion on sailboat in Bosa

The Sardinian vultures is the last remnant autochthonous Italian populations. In the vultures' main range, Bosa municipality, has been recorded the highest number of fledglings, likely because of decreased human disturbance. This is the reason why the way to see Vultures by our sail trip is the best way. We can see in total silence and respect their amazing flights in the air close to them, your chicks waiting food in the hidden nests, taking pictures or movies with your cameras.

Trip Program:

10.00 (15,00). Board Hansiosa in Bosa marina. Meet the crew, visit the boat, receive a short briefing on the rules to be followed on board, the rules of safe navigation and first informations about basics of sailing practise.

10.30 (15,30). Departure. (Mooring maneuvers) We'll sail after hoist sails (when wind conditions allows) trying tack and jibe, to reach the cape of Marrargiu, along Bosa's seacoast.

11.30 (16,30). Spotting vultures..

12.00 (17,00). After anchoring (maneuvers), you'll have time for a refreshing swim in the sea (masks and flippers are available to borrow). We'll set sail again.... lower sails and engine use.
