From the mouth of the river heading north towards the Cape of Marargiu, the first of a series of small and beautiful coves is Cala 'e Moros (Moors of falls). Continuing the navigation, Sos pupos (the children) gives bizarre landscapes, rock lends itself more to the imagination, offering profiles of ancient dinosaurs, raptors and elephants, to the entrance of the bay of Cala Rapina.

Then we reach the small sandy S'Abba Druche and Compoltittu (small comfort with marina), which delight the viewer with hints of tropical waters thanks to shallow waters and white sands. We are close to the small promontory of the jagged Torre Argentina where small coves with smooth white rocks offer us wonderful and often solitary relaxation.

The tour continues; we will dock in the bay of Porto Managu - the last coastal stretch reachable by land. From here on the geology of the coast and rocks undergoes a marked transformation, offering the viewer a magnificent landscape of imposing cliffs full of crevices and cracks in the rocks of trachytic and andesitic volcanic origin. Wonder at the sight of the famous caves, a visit into the heart of the mountain enjoying the grandeur of the structures created by the force of waves at the base of the jagged cliffs where often it is possible to glimpse the rare Griffon Gypis fulvus.
